CONGRESS

The 54th Congress Convened on Monday.

The Opening Ceremonies Witnessed by Large Crowds.

Mr. Reed of Maine Elected Speaker of the House.

Mr. Frye Discussed as President Pro Tem. of Senate.

Interesting and Enthusiastic Features of First Day.

WASHINGTON Dec 2 The 54th Congress met at noon to-day and the usual ceremonies took place in both houses In the senate the members took the oath and after some matters had been discussed adjourned

In the House

Mr Kerr, clerk of the last house called the members to order The roll was called and 341 members responded The clerk announced that the first business in order was the election of a Speaker

Mr Grosvenor of Ohio, presented the name of Mr Reed for Speaker Before he had finished a handclapping was started among the Republican members and for a minute or so the clapping was kept up on the floor and was repeated from the galleries

Mr Sayres, of Texas nominated Mr Crisp and Mr Kemp, of Nebraska, nominated John C Bell of Colorado

The result of the ballot was as follows Reed 232, Crisp, 95, Bell, 6 Culberson, 1 total 336

Mr Reed was declared elected

He was escorted to the desk by Messrs Crisp Grosvenor and Bell and the oath was administered by Mr Harmer of Pennsylvania

Mr Reed then spoke as follows

Gentlemen of the House of Representatives

It will be unbecoming in me if I express to this assembly and acknowledge to it that it is very agreeable to me to stand once more in the place which I left four years ago (applause and laughter) Of the past however I shall not speak for the past can speak for itself in words more fitting and suitable than any which can come properly from my lips Nor shall I speak of the future for we are not now putting off the harness but putting it on

Yet I hope I may say of the future in the light of the past that if at any time anything is done that may seem out of place which has justified itself (as on many occasions may do so again) those who acted with wisdom in the past may be fairly expected to act with wisdom in the future The pleasure associated with the honor you have bestowed upon me an honor which every American citizen can appreciate and for which I give thanks is but for a moment while the cares and responsibilities will extend themselves over many weary days

So far as the performance of my duties affect the people of the United States I ask their considerate judgment So far as it affects the members of this House I ask the cordial co-operation of gentlemen on both sides of the chamber with out which I cannot hope to succeed assuring them that no effort on my part will be spared to aid them in their performance of their duties by that entire impartiality which is their just due (Applause)

It was twenty five minutes past one when the delegates from the four territories, forming a special group, stood up in the house and took the oath

The composition of the house was then completed by the introduction of a resolution by Mr Grosvenor, of Ohio, electing the following officers

Mr McDowell of Pennsylvania clerk

Mr Russell of Missouri, sergeant at arms

Mr Glenn, of New York, door keeper

Mr McElroy of Ohio, postmaster

Rev Mr Couden, of Michigan chaplain

A substitute was offered by Mr Sayres (Dem Texas) electing the present Democratic holders of those offices which was put to viva voce vote

The speaker said, with an amusing pretence of hesitation, that the "noes" appeared to have it, then after general laughter, he announced that the "noes" had it The newly elected officials then had the oath administered to them

Further progress was made by adoption of resolutions for daily meetings of the house at 12 M, for notifying the President and senate of the house being in session and having elected its speaker and clerk, for the appointment of a committee to join a like committee on the part of the senate to wait upon the President

Messrs Payne, of Ohio, (Rep) Cannon, of Illinois, (Rep), and Crisp of Georgia, (Dem), were appointed such committee on the part of the House

Mr Cannon, of Illinois, (Rep) offered a resolution that the rules of the House of the 51st Congress be the rules of the present Congress A question put to him by Mr Crisp, of Georgia, (Dem), whether the adoption of that resolution now was intended to prevent any report from the Committee on Rules and any opportunity to discuss the rules The question was answered by Mr Cannon to the effect that it was not his desire or purpose but that of course he could not respond for the majority of the House

Mr Dingley of Maine (Rep) asked Mr Cannon whether it was intended that at the proper time the rules should be referred to the Committees on Rules, and ample opportunity be given the house to discuss the report of that committee

"Oh, certainly, Mr Cannon returned

"That will be entirely agreeable," said Mr Crisp "I do not wish in any way to interfere with the adoption of temporary rules."

The resolution was agreed to

About 2 o'clock the drawing of seats was begun ex Speakers being first allowed to select seats without drawing for them When the number corresponding to the name of Mr Boutelle, of Maine (Republican) was drawn, he took Mr Reed's old seat in the center of the House Mr Milnes, of Michigan (Rep) chose the seat in the front row occupied in the last session by Mr Dingley, of Maine, (Rep) Mr Dingley had to take an obscure seat in the rear of the hall

Before the house adjourned Mr Curtis, of Kansas, tendered Mr Dingley the seat he (Curtis) had drawn which was well down in the front of the chamber, directly in the rear of the seat Mr Dingley occupied in the last congress Mr Dingley accepted the young Kansas member's offer with a profusion of thanks

When the drawing of seats was completed the house at 4 30 adjourned until tomorrow

Notice was given that a Democratic caucus would be held immediately

Republican Senatorial Caucus

The caucus held this afternoon by the Republican senators although devoid of positive action, demonstrated the fact that a probable successful attempt will soon be made to reorganize the senate in both committees and elective officers The caucus lasted not more than half an hour and there was a general clearing of the atmosphere which had been somewhat obscured by the action of a few senators who met Saturday night to prepare a plan for taking the management of the senate out of the hands of the older members

The result of this afternoon's talk was a reconciliation of conflicting elements The caucus met with a feeling of apprehension in the minds of some as to what Messrs Hansbrough, Pettigrew, Clark, Carter Mantle, Dubois, Chandler, Gallinger and Proctor, who held the conference above referred to, intended doing in the matter of organization

A few of the western Senators were determined to force action at once but Senators Proctor and Chandler favored waiting until a more convenient season, and were not prepared to go to the extreme the course of others pointed

Mr Dubois was opposed to permitting the chairman of the caucus Mr Sherman to appoint the committee to fill the existing committee vacancies as he looked upon this as inimical to the interests of the younger members He had a resolution prepared providing for the selection of a committee for this purpose by the caucus

Mr Hoar had a resolution prepared instructing Senator Sherman as chairman of the caucus to name the committee but neither proposition was submitted

It is said that the discussion showed that the caucus would not permit Mr Dubois' plan to prevail It was finally agreed to that it would be better to defer the matter until another day

Senator Frye was suggested as president pro tem and no other name was mentioned He will be nominated but it was useless to do anything in the matter to-day, as no president pro tem can be elected so long as the vice-pres ident fills the chair

If the resolution can show the Democrats that they have enough votes to elect a president pro tem an election will be held It is understood that Mr Sherman is to consult with the opposition caucus chairman and arrange for a time for taking this vote By that time the Republicans will have agreed upon candidates for the other offices the whole ticket will be placed in the field In order to reorganize the senate the Republicans must have two votes outside of their own ranks and Senators Stewart and Jones hold the balance of power

LAVIGNE THE WINNER

Walcott Barely Saved a Knockout—Brutal Scene in the Ring

MASPETH L I, Dec 2 The fifteen round contest to-night between Joe Walcott Tom O'Rourke's colored protege, and George Lavigne the "Saginaw Kid" attracted one of the largest crowds to the Empire Athletic Club seen since the club opened. Both men were unbeaten lightweights and the contest was practically to decide the lightweight championship It was arranged that the decision should go to Lavigne if he should be on his feet at the end of the fifteen rounds

Lavigne had the advantage all through Walcott came up very weak in the fifteenth A straight left on the jaw staggered him Another left on the neck nearly sent him to the ropes

The scene when the bell rang and when the referee according to the agreement pronounced Lavigne the winner, was one of great enthusiasm A terrific right swing nearly severed Lavigne's ear which was hanging half off during the fight

DIGESTION AND WORK.

HOW SICK PEOPLE MAY SAVE THEIR ENERGY

It is as hard work for some people to digest their dinner as it is for a normal man to walk ten miles

"After dinner rest a while" This is an old saying It means that if after eating a heavy meal you try to do hard work you will exhaust all your energy. There will be none left for your stomach Your stomach needs energy to work just as your leg or arm does.

Sick people want energy They seldom have enough for their stomach Their digestion is out of order and they want to know the reason. It's simple enough as we have told it

What they ought to do is to save their stomachs from hard work until it is capable of doing it, just as they rest their tired backs by lying down

This they can do by using artificially digested food. Shaker digestive cordial contains such food; not only this, but it is capable of digesting other foods in the stomach.

Shaker Digestive Cordial affords nourishment and creates new energy as soon as it is swallowed. Ordinary food first has to be digested. Shaker Digestive Cordial while creating new energy does not expend any. It gives the stomach no work to do. It will make thin people fat. Sick people are naturally thin. Getting thin is a sign of sickness. A person may be born thin, and naturally remain so. Such a one is not necessarily sick. All Druggists keep it and a 10 cent sample bottle may first be tried.

THE MASSACRES.

What the Official Turkish Reports Show.

Christian Villages Burned by the Kurds and People Butchered.

Terrible Work Went on Without Restraint For a Long Time.

LONDON, Dec 2 A representative of the United Press in Constantinople telegraphs under date of Dec 1 that the official reports of the disturbances in Caesarea on the 30th ult state that the disorder was due to two Armenians discharging guns in the market place Some persons were killed the report says, and order was restored in 3 hours In the rioting at Harpoot on November 10th the Kurds made an attack upon the place, but were easily repulsed On the 11th a party of soldiers withdrew The Kurds advanced with wild yells There was no effort on the part of the soldiers and Armenians to resist the Turks who joined in the killing and plundering

An Armenian school was burned and then began an attack upon the Christian quarter The buildings in which they were were set on fire The Christians were without weapons of any sort and trusted entirely to the government to protect them The Americans remained in the girls seminary until that building was set on fire and they then appealed to the government for protection They obtained a guard of soldiers all but two of whom afterwards deserted

These two remained and carried out the orders issued to them The burning continued three days The Americans were stripped of everything but their clothing All christian villages around were burned by the Kurds

The outrages continued unchecked until the government at Constantinople ordered the troops to take action Fourteen Kurds were then shot, when the murders and pillaging ceased instantly

The districts of Diarbekir, Malatia, Arabkir, Even and Palu were made desolate Thirty five villages were destroyed and thousands of inhabitants embraced Islamism in consequence of the pressure brought to bear upon them

Sounds Well But Is It True?

WASHINGTON, Dec 2 Mavroyeni Bey, Turkish minister called on Secretary Olney today with a message from the Porte that the American missionaries throughout the Turkish empire had the greatest protection and sufficient troops had been detailed to protect them from the attacks of the Armenian rioters The message said that the missionaries expressed their gratitude for this imperial protection

FATALLY INJURED

Man Run Over on Railroad Bridge at Skowhegan

SKOWHEGAN, Me, Dec 2 John Bi Marrsville, forty-eight years old, formerly of France, had both legs crushed off below the knee by a train on the railroad bridge here this evening He is supposed to have been intoxicated The injuries are probably fatal

Moose Hunting

A little over a week ago the forests were in prime condition for hunting in all its forms There was just snow enough for easy trailing, and it was not covered with a crust to prevent an easy approach to game Then there came a change, which temporarily put a stop to it all A heavy rain of but a few hours duration carried off about all the snow in the clearings and unsheltered spots, and all but a few inches in the woods Then what little remained was frozen so solid that a hunter walking in the woods could be heard a long distance

The moose which have kept back in the depth of the big forest are now beginning to yard on the northern sides of the mountains, and a shot at a bull is a possibility

During the month of September, were it open time the moose call which by the way can be successfully used by but a very few of the oldest guides might have been brought into play with reasonable hope of success but during October and until the cold winter weather sets in the king of the forest is not a very easy animal to kill During this time a cow and a calf are often seen, but the bulls are roaming about the mountain sides waiting for their antlers to harden, gnawing the bark of the willow and maple and incidentally selecting a yarding place for the winter

They are now wary, but after yarding, when the snows begin to come, they are less on their guard, and are much more easily killed They begin at the base of the mountain when snow first comes and work along the ridge to the top before the snow gets to its full depth, then working down again, breaking up and treading down the deep snow eating the soft bark from every small tree within reach They prefer moosewood willow and maple, but will gnaw almost any small hard wood tree Moose yarding together will remain near the yard all winter unless disturbed If a hunter comes near the yard the animals will separate, going in all directions a cow and her calf together, but in all other cases no two animals together

The hunter then must take a track and follow it, which is difficult work when tracks are as numerous as they usually are about a yard, and if he keeps persistently at it for five days, and in some cases not as long as that he is sure of his moose No moose that roams in the forest can stand continual tramping for a longer time than five days The first three days they travel swiftly and easily but the unprotected hoofs wear down rapidly and by the end of the third day the feet will begin to bleed In at least two days more the hoofs are entirely worn out and the animal can go no farther He is still good for a brave fight and will make it lively for the hunter if his first shot is not fatal

This method of getting moose is accompanied by considerable hardship if the hunter is not accustomed to long tramping and sleeping in a blanket on the snow, for he must during the first part of the tramp keep it up every moment that he can see to keep the trail

The open season for birds closed for this season Saturday and may truly be said to be the best season for game of this sort that some sections of the country ever saw A sportsman who has been all through the forests in different sections judging from his own personal observations and what he has been told by others, has not the slightest doubt that 10,000 partridges have been shot in that territory since the season opened

It is about time that the bears were denning up for the winter but in some places they are reported as much more numerous than earlier in the season and a great many have been shot and trapped

A San Francisco despatch says Steamer Gaelic brings news that the United States Gunboat Concord is reported to have been seriously damaged by going ashore on the northern Chinese coast The gunboat was coming down the river from Foo Chow, Oct 31 in company with the Monocacy, when she ran aground She was hauled off all right but it is said she had been badly injured, and the cement foundations of her engines had been cracked It is feared the vessel will not be able to make any kind of speed until she has been overhauled.

The Massachusetts Railroad Commissioners Friday sent in a report of their investigation of the collision at Edgeworth, on the Boston & Maine railroad, Nov. 2 One man was killed and several persons injured by the accident. The commissioners find "Cause of the accident was inexcusable neglect of the men in charge of the shifting freight train to obey the rule which requires a train of that description to keep out of the way of a regular passenger train. The conductor and engineer of the freight train both knew the risk they were taking and they are alike responsible for the disaster."

Charles Disston, brother and business partner of the late Henry Disston, founder of the Disston works, Philadelphia, died Sunday, aged 72.

A Washington despatch says In round figures the deficit for November will be $1,000,000; receipts footing up $26,000,000. Expenditures, $27,000,000. Deficit for the five months of the current fiscal year stands at $21,500,000.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1895.

The Meeting of Congress.

Both branches of Congress convened at the usual hour Monday and adjourned after brief sessions. In the House Mr. Reed was elected Speaker by a majority of 132 votes. The Democrats all voted for Mr. Crisp with the exception of Mr. Crane, of Texas, who voted for his colleague, Mr. Culberson. According to the theory of the New York World that it was political heresy for the Democrats to vote for Crisp, it appears that there is one Democrat in the House of Representatives as at present constituted. Speaker Reed accepted the gavel in a brief but feeling speech in which he expressed his sense of the high honor conferred upon him.

The message of the President will not be given to Congress until to-day. It is reported on the authority of Private Secretary Thurber that it is a long document, containing some fifteen thousand words. This being the case it is evident that the President realizes that he cannot cover the shortcomings of his Administration in any brief document. If the message is presented to-day it will appear in full in the columns of THE WHIG Wednesday morning.

The interest now centers in the formation of the committees, which, according to common report, will not be announced before next week.

Too Thin.

The Democratic Washington correspondent of the "independent" Chicago Times-Herald declares that the Republican members of Congress are now sitting on the ragged edge of despair owing to the fear that the President will carry the country with him in his forthcoming message. This correspondent had a very gauzy interview with an alleged Republican whose identity he carefully conceals, presumably because he does not exist, in which this Republican, imaginary or otherwise, is made to discuss the situation about as follows:

Suppose we say to the President: the trouble is not with the currency. Your Treasury has a deficit. You need more income. What then? Carlisle is going to tell us in his annual report, so I hear on good authority, that within a short time the income will equal the expenditures. That is what the experts of the Treasury say.

Well, suppose Secretary Carlisle does make such a statement, what will it amount to? He has been predicting a "comfortable surplus" for some time, but it has failed to materialize. Suppose the President does tell Congress that the trouble is not with the tariff law, but with the currency laws, what will his statement be worth in the face of existing conditions? The idea that Republicans are losing any sleep on account of anxiety over the President's message is amusing. In the first place no one cares a rap what Cleveland says, except as a mere matter of curiosity, as he is practically a dead cock in the pit and in the next "place" there is no occasion for any one else to walk the floor just now as Cleveland has a monopoly of that sort of thing. It is really very touching for the Times-Herald correspondent to get up this little romance with his imaginary Republican friend concerning the feeling over the message, but it is just a trifle thin.

Pleasant Notice.

Munsey's Magazine for December has an excellent picture of Congressman Boutelle to whom the editor refers in the following pleasant terms:

Charles A. Boutelle is one of the most picturesque members of Congress. Tom Reed himself is not so handsome, and is not a whit bolder, not a whit more aggressive. In fact, there is no man in Congress who has more decided opinions than Boutelle, and there is no man in Congress more ready to express them. He is and always has been, whether in naval battle or in the midst of political warfare, one of the most fearless men of New England. Politically he is a Republican and a radical. But he is so straightforward, so consistent, withal, that he commands the respect of his opponents and wins their warm friendship. It could not be otherwise, for Boutelle is a first rate good fellow, straight, clean, generous—the sort of a man who would lay down his life for a cause or a friend, if need be. He is a pleasing and effective speaker. He has a rich, powerful voice, and an exceptionally engaging presence, tall, straight, sturdy. He is a popular after dinner speaker, and has a fund of anecdote almost rivaling Depew's.

Boutelle won his first laurels in the navy, where he served with Farragut; then he entered the field of journalism, as the editor and owner of THE BANGOR WHIG AND COURIER. His ability soon became recognized, and Maine was not slow in fixing upon him as the sort of man to represent her in the national legislature.

Cleveland and His Party.

The New York Herald in connection with its third term crusade remarks that it is satisfied that the feeling in favor of the re-election of Mr. Cleve and is growing. We incline to the opinion that it would bother the Herald to furnish any satisfactory evidence of a growing sentiment in favor of Cleveland, in the sense in which it uses the term, but all the same we hope the Democratic party will turn to him again in the next convention. We hope so for two reasons. First, because his candidacy would make Republican success doubly sure. The attempt to make it appear that Cleveland escaped the overwhelming censure administered to his party in the recent elections, is as absurd as the other contention of the Herald, namely, that he has converted the party to the advocacy of "sound money," and nothing could possibly be more absurd than that. He could not find a single representative of the party to go before the Democratic caucus to oppose the re-nomination of Mr. Crisp. Neither was it possible to get a so-called "sound money" resolution introduced at that meeting. There was some talk about it on account of the effect it might have in the East, but the sentiment of the handful of men coming from those States where Democracy was able to withstand the increasing tide of public condemnation, was so pronounced in favor of free silver that the scheme was abandoned. There is not much of the Democratic party left, but what remains stands with Crisp and his free silver views. Another reason why we would like to see Cleveland go before the people once more is the knowledge that it would forever end the sickening gush that is daily served up in his behalf. He would be so thoroughly buried politically that the weather vane politicians who sing his praises six days in seven, stopping one day only to get their breath for a fresh start, would, like rats, scuttle from the sinking ship. By all means let the Democrats renominate Cleveland.

Reed's Return.

The Boston Advertiser says: Not the least among the many causes for national rejoicing which are connected with the meeting of the 54th Congress, will the spectacle which once more greets the glad eyes of the country in the form of a popular branch of the national legislature under the control of the Republican party, is the return of Hon. Thomas B. Reed, of Maine, to the speaker's chair. It was a great day for the millions of America when he first took that high seat. It was an evil day when he temporarily retired from it, it is an auspicious day on which he resumes the gavel and reinaugurates the regime of firmness, efficiency, patriotism and Yankee common sense which his enemies called "Reedism," until on their own accession to power they found themselves compelled by public sentiment and the condition of things to adopt its salient features, so far as their limited understanding and capacity enabled them so to do. Never was a statesman more completely vindicated than Mr. Reed has been, nor did any statesman ever less need vindication.

It is not his own party that has done it. His political opponents did it, when they were forced to stop villifying his actions and follow his example. The progress of events, the sober second thoughts of sober and thoughtful citizens confirmed the correctness of his position.

Again and again and yet over again the people at the ballot boxes proclaimed their confidence in and their admiration for the policy which he instituted and unwaveringly maintained and made overwhelmingly triumphant. He is to be congratulated, indeed; but much more is the nation to be congratulated. Congress can do business. Legislation can proceed. The representatives of the people will never again be hindered by factious obstruction from doing the duty, for the doing of which the people have chosen them. A great branch of the general government is no more to be strangled by parliamentary red tape. The red tape has been cut asunder. It was cut, once for all, by the keen edge of the knife of common sense and practical wisdom held in the strong hand of Thomas B. Reed. Hurrah for Reed!

The Democratic Debt.

The New York Press says: Will the friends—if it has any friends left—of Mr. Cleveland's Administration please to notice that on the last day of November the Cleveland debt was $303,456,420? Will they be good enough to recall that a short time ago Mr. Carlisle's corps of manipulators were able by withholding disbursements and deferring payments on overdue obligations to get the figures down at the end of each month to about $298,000,000? Will they remember that in the previous quarter the figures were sometimes summed down to $292,000,000? Will they let their memory wander back to July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year? The Cleveland debt then was only $285,000,000. We say "only" in the way that one might refer to a massacre when slaughter and annihilation were possible.

UPRISING AT OORFA.

Christians and Moslems Said to be Murdered.

Cruiser Marblehead Arrived at Alexandretta—Baptist Missionaries in Danger.

Boston, Dec. 2.—Word was received by mail this morning at the rooms of the American Board stating that there had been a terrible uprising among the Moslems at Oorfa, a station of the Central Turkey mission.

Christians and a few Moslems had been murdered, in what proportion is not stated. Pillage and murder occurred all day on Sunday, Oct. 28. The Turkish soldiers did not try to quell the disturbances, but witnessed all forms of theft without attempting to interfere.

The premises of the mission of the American Board were surrounded by armed Christians. The only missionary at Oorfa is Miss Corinna Shattuck who was born in Louisville, Ky., in 1848. Her home at the time of leaving this country was in Framingham, Mass. She embarked for the foreign field in 1873. Word has been received from Miss Shattuck that notwithstanding her isolation and exposure to violence she does not desire that other American missionaries should be sent to her from neighboring mission stations.

Release of Dr. Peltkian and Wife Obtained.

London, Dec. 2.—A correspondent of the United Press at Alexandretta, Northern Syria, writing under date of November 21st, says: The United States Cruiser Marblehead arrived here on November 18th. She reached here early in the morning and remained until midday when she sailed for Pajas to look after Dr. Peltkian and his wife, who are detained there. Dr. Peltkian is a native of Asia Minor. He is a naturalized citizen of the United States and his wife is a native of Baltimore, M. D.

Upon the arrival of the Marblehead at Pajas, Commander O'Neil, commanding the cruiser, went ashore and had a consultation with the local authorities with the result of obtaining the release of Dr. Peltkian and his wife who reached here yesterday evening escorted by a guard of Turkish soldiers. The country round and about the gulf of Iskanderoon has been ravaged by Moslem marauders and the smoke arising from burning villages can be plainly seen here.

About 7,000 Armenian Greeks have reached the town of Chekmerzin a town 30 miles from Alexandretta fleeing from the Moslem pursuers who have completely demolished the villages of Uzerli, Adjakli, and Kiraklissia. The horde of marauders in his vicinity are not molested by the Turkish troops who are encamped near the place. They are preparing to attack the Armenian refugees at Chotena, who offer to surrender if they are protected by the troops.

Baptist Missionaries in Danger.

London, Dec. 2.—Great fear is felt for the safety of the Baptist missionaries in the province of Shenshi, China. No news of them has been received since August. The latest report from them stated that the Mahommedan rebels had captured the city of Si Ngan, the capital of the Province, and murdered large numbers of men, women and children.

The city of Si Ngan is the capital of the northwest of China, and is next to Pekin in size, population and importance. It surpasses that city in historical interest and records. Si Ngan has been taken, rebuilt and destroyed since its establishment in the 12th century, B. C. by the Marshal King, but its position has always assured for it the control of trade between the Central and Western Provinces and Central Asia.

Capitalists Still Negotiating for New Chinese Loan.

Berlin, Dec. 2.—A Berlin and Frankfort syndicate of capitalists is announced to be continuing negotiations for a new Chinese loan of 300,000,000 marks. The reports on the Bourse credit the syndicate with stipulating as a condition of their handling the loan that large orders shall be placed in Germany to supply China with war-ships and railway material. As the English banking firms are giving the loan the cold shoulder it is understood that the German syndicate will seek to obtain a guarantee for it in Russia.

Menier Purchases an Island.

London, Dec. 2.—A despatch from Paris to the Exchange Telegraph Co. says that Menier, the chocolate manufacturer, has purchased the Canadian Island of Anticosti, situated in the estuary of the St. Lawrence river, paying therefor the sum of 40,000 pounds.

Change Expected Soon.

Constantinople, Dec. 2.—The general situation here has not changed since Saturday, but it is now apparent that a change is about to take place. The representatives of the powers, some of whom have been waiting instructions from their governments in regard to the matter of putting additional guard boats into the Bosphorus, now seem to be unanimous in their assistance upon the issuance of permits for the admission of these boats by the sultan. The ambassadors will hold a meeting to consider the situation as presented by the sultan's refusal to permit the passage of the additional boats through the straits decide upon a concerted plan of action.

Movements in Cuban Rebellion.

Santago, De Cuba, Nov. 24., via Key West, Fla., Dec. 2.—Col. Rotger, with a Spanish column 1000 strong, arrived at Guantanalo on the 19th inst. after being out on war operations for four or five days. When the Spaniards arrived in the suburbs of Yateras they met the rebel leader, Gil, and his party who immediately attacked the van and rear guards of the Spaniards firing for more than an hour and a half. The column answered the fire, but at last were obliged to retreat. The Spaniards had ten killed and four wounded and left several prisoners in the hands of the rebels. The Insurgents had four killed and seven wounded.

Col. Saguna of the Spanish army who has been in war operations in Guantanamo since the beginning of the present rebellion has been transferred to Louisville. It is rumored here that Gen. Martinez Campos removed him on account of the many complaints made against him by the people of Guantanamo for cruelties that he committed there. Fourteen guerrilleros of Col. Tejeda Guerrilla, were hanged by Leader Rabi. These men were sent by Tejeda to join the rebels in order to kill Rabi, but he received information of their project and they were sentenced to death. When questioned after being sentenced they confessed their intention.

Projectile Thrown at Czar.

LONDON, Dec. 2. The Central News' correspondent in Vienna says that a report is in circulation there that a projectile was thrown at the Czar in St. Petersburg to-day. The missile grazed His Majesty's cloak and fell harmlessly to the ground. No one was injured. The report says that fourteen arrests have been made in connection with the affair. Confirmation of the rumor is lacking.

A DELIBERATE PLOT.

The Wrecking of the N. Y. & Phila. Night Express at Preble, N. Y.

CORTLAND, N. Y., Dec. 2. The wreck of the New York and Philadephia night express on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad at Preble, last night, was the result of a deliberate plot on the part of persons unknown. Ten miles north of Preble Station there is a switch which side-tracks cars behind the station. On this track stood seven freight cars and into these the express crashed.

YOUNG MAN WANTED

For Swindling People of Pasadena and Pomona.

POMONA Cal., Dec. 2. A young man named Hunter, who, in September, 1892, forged checks in Chicago and a year ago swindled the society people of Portland and Astoria, Oregon, out of thousands by representing himself as the nephew of Andrew Carnegie, has just obtained from people of Pasadena and this place something over $2,000 in loans and debts. Twenty-seven persons are seeking him.

STEAMER DISASTER.

Five Barges Go to Pieces on Rocks and Steamer Badly Strained.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec. 2. Another steamer of the Pittsburg Coal Fleet has met with disaster. Yesterday about daybreak the Advance, owned by Captain Wm. Wood, and having in tow eight barges of coal belonging to the Advance Coal Company, struck on Sand Creek bar, 30 miles below Parkersburgh. Five barges went to pieces on the rocks and the steamer was so badly strained that her seams opened and she sank until her boiler deck was below the water line. The balance of her tow is in bad shape and, with the steamer, will likely be lost unless assistance can be had soon.

Cod-liver oil suggests consumption, which is almost unfortunate.

Its best use is before you fear consumption; when you begin to get thin, weak, run down; then is the prudent time to begin to take care, and the best way to take care is to supply the system with needed fat and strength. Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil, with hypophosphites, will bring back plumpness to those who have lost it, and make strength where raw cod-liver oil would be a burden.

A substitute only imitates the original.

Almost every man in America has some digestive trouble When men meet the greeting usually is "Well how are you?" That develops health talk The man who has no stomach or bowel trouble is almost a curiosity Trouble is men take no care of themselves. They work as if their bodies were made of iron and their brains of steel They eat as if they had copper stomachs and bowels of brass By and by overworked nature rebel Then come headaches nervousness, bad blood liver and kidney troubles health goes and strength goes It is really wonderful how much abuse the human body will stand It is equally wonderful how quickly it will recover from abuse if one helps in a rational natural way

It was to give just such help that Dr Pierce's Pleasant Pellets were prepared. They are for constipation and torpid liver, and in curing those derangements—cure many complications and resultant diseases, such as sick and bilious headache dizziness sour stomach loss of appetite indigestion or dyspepsia windy belchings, heartburn pain and distress after eating and kindred derangements of the liver stomach and bowels. They are mild in action merely supplementing nature They are the result of years of study and experience and there is nothing else like them nothing so effective If your druggist tries to sell you something else he is either ignorant or makes more money out of the other thing

LIBEL SUIT.

Verdict Returned Against Architect Spofford.

Jury Find Charge Was True and Was Published Without Malice.

Boston Dec 2—In the superior court today the jury returned a verdict for the defendant in each of the two suits brought by Architect John C Spofford vs the Everett Herald Publishing Co of Everett and Frank P Bennett to recover damages for an alleged libel contained in the Everett Herald in the fall of 1894 when Mr Spofford was a candidate for nomination by the Republicans as representative to the general court

The articles in question stated that Mr Spofford's withdrawal from the firm of Brigham & Spofford architects of the new state house was not voluntary and that it was due to his connection with a certain iron contract and added The contract which we have referred to above as being the means of Mr Spofford's removal from the firm of Brigham & Spofford was of such a flagrant character that the Medfield Asylum scandal is said to be insignificant beside it

In reply to a question put by Judge Sherman this morning the foreman of the jury said that the jury found the charge to be true and that it was published without malice

NEW YORK Dec 2 A special cable despatch to the Herald from St Petersburg says The Czar, who takes a keen personal interest in the Turkish as in all other important questions, said, while speaking very earnestly on the subject

THE ANIMALS' THANKSGIVING

Pampered by Kindly Visitors to the Central Park Menagerie—Effects of the Feast on Different Inmates

The kindly feeling that made men and women of all stations have an open handed friendship for those not so fortunate as themselves extended even to the animals in the Central Park Menagerie, which, day in and day out, attract the young and old, supplying an interesting exhibition free of cost

There was no lack of the friends of the animals to be seen about the menagerie, and they had all come with their pockets full of "goodies" to give the animals gastronomic pleasure and, probably indigestion The monkeys, when the menagerie was closed, were plethoric They had eaten chestnuts, raisins, candy and cakes of various bakings, and sat in silent conclave on the floor of their cages, embracing in pathetic agony their distended stomachs There was not a joke in the whole crowd of them

In the birdhouse the macaws had quarrelled over a peck of peanuts, and were still squealing It is impossible to satisfy the maw of a parrot The jackdaws and the magpie accepted everything with thanks, and then went and buried it in the rubble that floors their cages The pigeons were well cared for and went to roost with full crops

The lions, tigers etc, received an extra portion of horse, and then went quietly to sleep not caring one jot or tittle for the curious mob that wanted them to roar and jump around Mrs Murphy, the hippopotamus that shares a pen with their daughter Fatima was in bad temper Michael Fero, the keeper, had given the hippopotami an extra allowance of hay, and was cleaning out the tank, when the elder one came for him open mouthed, and the open mouth of a hippopotamus is not a thing to be smiled at "Mike" confesses that he made a record in getting out of the pen, and declares that he would sooner go into any of the cages of the lions or tigers than have a personal interview with Mrs. Murphy.

The ostriches were charmed with the assortment of food offered them, which ranged from the ordinary board nail to the average home-made pie, the former more easily digested, by the ostrich at least The deer were pampered to a dangerous degree, and the same was true of the Esquimaux dogs, who have developed a notable taste for things American. The bears, both grizzlies and polars, seem to have an unlimited capacity for anything that is offered them to eat Peanuts, candies lozenges, buns, bread or biscuits are all gratefully received, and perhaps "Paddy" Moran, their keeper, will have to give them a dose of pepsin

Finding a sheltered secret corner we made a very hasty breakfast of these stolen dainties and since we had not the heart to restore them to our innkeeper, so we had not the face to chide Moll for her larceny, but made light of the business and ate with great content and some mirth

A drizzly rain falling and turning the snow into slush, we kept under the shelter of the shed, and this giving us scope for the reflection Don Sanchez had counseled my compunctions were greatly shaken by the consideration of our present position and the prospect of worse When I thought of our breakfast that Moll had stolen and how willingly we would all have eaten a dinner got by the same means I had to acknowledge that certainly we were all thieves at heart and this conclusion together with sitting all day doing nothing in the raw cold did make the design of Don Sanchez seem much less heinous to me than it appeared the night before when I was warm and not exceedingly sober and indeed toward dusk I came to regard it as no bad thing at all

About 6 comes back our don on a fine horse and receives our salutations with a cool nod—we standing there of a row looking our sweetest like hungry dogs in expectation of a bone Then in he goes to the inn without a word and now my worst fear was that he had thought better of his offer and would abandon it

So there we hang about the best part of an hour now thinking the don would presently send for us and then growing to despair of everything but to be left in the cold forgotten but in the end comes Master Landlord to tell us his worship in the cherry room would see us So after the same formalities of cleansing ourselves as the night afore up stairs we go, it the heels of a drawer carrying a roast pig which to our senses was more delightful than any bunch of flowers

With a gesture of his hands after saluting us with great dignity Don Sanchez bade us take our places at the table and with never a word of question as to our decision but that was scarce necessary for it needed no subtle observation to perceive that we would accept any conditions to get our share of that roast pig This supper differed not greatly from the former save that our Moll was taken with a kind of tickling at the throat which presently attracted our notice

"What ails you Dolly my dear?" asks Jack Has a bit of crackling gone down the wrong way

She put it off as if she would have us take no notice of it but it grew worse and worse toward the end of the meal and became a most horrid tearing cough which she did so natural as to deceive us all and put us in great concern and especially Don Sanchez who declared she must have taken a cold by being exposed all day to the damp weather

"If I have," says she very prettily after wiping the tears from her upon an other fit 'tis surely a most ungrateful return for the kindness with which you sheltered me last night senor

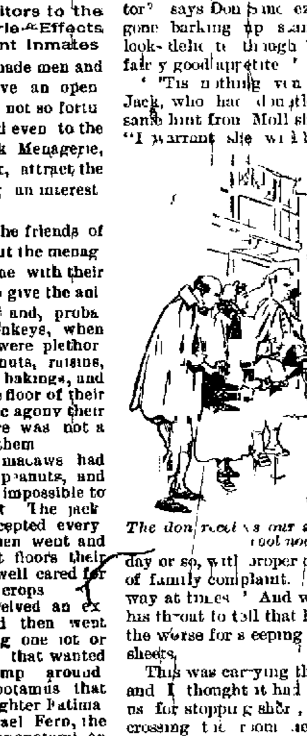

"I shall take better care to shelter you in the future my poor child" replies the don ringing the bell. Then the maid coming he bids her warm a bed and prepare a hot posset against Moll was tucked up in the blankets

And" says he turning to Moll "you shall not rise till noon my dear Your breakfast shall be brought to you in your room, where a fire shall be made and such treatment shown you as if you were my own child"

"Oh what have I done that you should be so gentle to me" exclaims Moll smothering another cough And with that she reaches out her leg under the table and fetches me a kick of the shin, looking all the while as pitiful and innocent as any painted picture.

Would it be well to fetch in a doctor?" says Don Sanchez when Moll was gone barking up stairs The child looks delicate though she eats with a fairly good appetite"

"'Tis nothing you know" replies Jack, who had doubtless received the same hint from Moll she had given me "I warrant she will be mended in a day or so, with proper care 'Tis a kind of family complaint. I am taken that way at times" And with that he rasps his throat to tell that he would be none the worse for sleeping a night between sheets

The don receives our salutations with a cool nod

This was carrying the matter too far and I thought it had certainly undone us for stopping short, with a start in crossing the room he turns and looks first at Dawson then at me with anything but a pleasant look in his eyes at finding his dignity hurt to be thus bustled by a mere child Then this dark eye brows unbending with the reflection maybe that it was so much the better to his purpose that Moll could so act us to deceive him he seats himself gravely, and replies to Jack

"Your family will may get you a night's lodging, but I doubt if you will ever merit it so well as your daughter"

"Well," says Jack with a laugh, "what wit we have among us we are resolved to employ in your honor's service so that you show us this steward fellow is a rascal that deserves to be bounced, and we do no great injury to any one else"

"Good," says Don Sanchez. "We will proceed to that without delay And now, as we have no matter to discuss, and must be afoot early tomorrow, I will ring for a light to take you to bed."

So we go up presently to a good snug room, with a bed to each of us fit for a prince. And there with the blankets drawn up to our ear, we fell blessing our stars that we were now fairly out of our straits and after that to discussing whether we should consult Moll's inclination to this business. First, Dawson was for telling her plump out all about our project, saying that, being so young, she had no conscience to speak of and would like nothing better than to take part in any piece of mischief. But against this I protested, seeing that it would be dangerous to our design to let her know so much (she having a woman's tongue in her head), and also of a bad tendency to mar her, as it were, at the very beginning of her life, a knowing active party to what looked like nothing more nor less than a fraud. Therefore I proposed we should, when necessary, tell her just so much of our plan as was expedient and no more. And his agreeing mightily, with Jack's natural turn for taking of short cuts out of difficulties, he fell in with my views at once, and so, "bidding God bless me, he lays the clothes over his head and was snoring the next minute.

In the morning we found the don just as kind to us as the day before he had been careless, and so made us eat breakfast with him, to our great content Also he sent a maid up to Moll to inquire of her health and if she could eat any thing from our table, to which the baggage sends reply that she feels a little easier this morning and could fancy a dish of black puddings. These delicacies her father carried to her being charged by the don to tell her that we should be gone for a couple of days and that in our absence she might command whatever she felt was necessary to her complete recovery against our return Then I told Don Sanchez how we had resolved to tell Moll no more of our purpose than was necessary for the moment, which pleased him I thought mightily he saying that our success or failure depended upon secrecy as much as anything for which reason he had kept us in the dark as much as ever it was possible

About 8 o clock three saddle nags were brought to the door and we mounting set out for London where we arrived about 10 the roads being fairly passable save in the marshy parts about Shoreditch where the mire was knee deep so to Gracious street and there leaving our nags at the Turk inn we walked down to the bridge stairs and thence with a pair of oars to Greenwich Here, after our tedious chilly voyage we were not ill pleased to see the inside of an inn once more and Don Sanchez taking us to the king's posting house orders a fire to be lighted in a private room and the best there was in the larder to be served us in the virgin parlor While we were at our trenchers Don Sanchez says

At 2 o clock two men are coming hither to see me One is a master mariner named Robert Evans the other a merchant adventurer of his acquaintance whom I have not yet seen Now you are to mark these two men well note all they say and their manner of speaking, or tomorrow you will have to personate these characters before one who would be only too glad to find you at fault

Very good senor says Dawson but which of these parts am I to play?

That you may decide when you have seen the men but I should say from my knowledge of Robert Evans that you may best represent his character For in your parts today you are to be John and Christopher Knight two needy cousins of Lady Godwin whose husband Sir Richard Godwin was lost at sea seven years ago I doubt if you will have to do anything in these characters beyond looking eager and answering merely Yes and No to such questions as I may put

Thus primed we went presently to the sitting room above and the drawer shortly after coming to say that two gentlemen desired to see Don Sanchez Jack and I seated ourselves side by side at a becoming distance from the don holding on hats on our knees as humbly as may be

Then in comes a rude dirty fellow with a patch over one eye and a most peculiar boorish gait dressed in a rough coat with a wool shawl about his neck followed by a shrewd visaged little gentleman in a plain cloth suit but of very good substance he looking just as trim and well mannered as the other was uncouth and rude

Well, here am I says Evans whom we knew at once for the master mariner flinging his hat and shawl in a corner There's his excellency Don Sanchez, and here's Mr Hopkins the merchant I spoke on yesterday And who be these turning about to fix us with his one blue eye

Two gentlemen related to Mrs Godwin and very anxious for her return replies the don

Then we being met friends all let's have up a bottle and heave off on this here business without more ado says Evans and with that he seats himself in the don's chair pokes up the fire with his boots and spits on the hearth.

The don graciously places a chair for Mr Hopkins rings the bell and seats himself Then after a few civilities while the bottle was being opened and our glasses filled he says

"You have doubtless heard from Robert Evans the purpose of our coming hither, Mr Hopkins?

Roughly replies Mr Hopkins with a dry little cough. "But I should be glad to have the particulars from you that I may judge more clearly of my responsibilities in this undertaking"

"O Lord!" exclaims Evans in disgust "Here give us a pipe of tobacco if we're to warp out half a day ere we get a capful of wind."

SHE MAY SEEK REDRESS IN COURTS

Miss Lee, the Teacher Without Pupils, Can Get No Explanation from Mr Maxwell

Miss Mary Lee, who has been a teacher in the Brooklyn public schools for about twenty years, and has been more recently attached to Intermediate School No 84, is just now in a somewhat peculiar position On Monday last Superintendent Maxwell took away seventeen of her forty six pupils without apparent cause, and sent them to school No 109 A little later all of the remaining pupils were withdrawn and sent to other schools, leaving Miss Lee without a single pupil. She complained to the superintendent, and afterward to the committee, but she could not get redress from either

Then she went back to the schoolroom, opened the afternoon session, and on Tuesday and Wednesday was also in her usual place. There were, however, no pupils to teach, and on Wednesday she announced that she would continue in her place after the Thanksgiving holiday was over

Superintendent Maxwell said that the pupils were taken away because the class was over-crowded, and he added that he did not see how Miss Lee could draw her pay for sitting in a deserted room. It is intimated that Miss Lee will seek redress through legal means This is the first case of its kind on record.

A NOTABLE TRADEMARK DECISION.

Judge Romanzo Bunn, U S Circuit Judge for the Western District of Wisconsin, has decided for defendants in the case of the Sterling Remedy Co, proprietors of "No-to-Bac, against the Eureka Chemical & Mfg Co, proprietors of "Baco-Curo." Suit was brought by the former April 3d last, asking $20,000 damages and an injunction restraining defendant from using the name "Baco-Curo," from advertising the same and from using boxes, racks, etc, which, it was claimed, were infringements upon those used by "No-to-Bac Judge Bunn decides for defendants on the ground that no marked similarity exists, that no infringement has been made, and that "Baco-Curo" by its injunction, "Don't Stop Tobacco," shows itself to be entirely distinct from "No-to-Bac," in that the latter requires the patient to cease using tobacco when commencing the remedy By the terms of the order the complainant's bill is dismissed and costs are taxed in favor of defendant. The case has excited especial interest inasmuch as it is the first of like character ever heard in the Wisconsin Federal courts and the decision, it is believed, will govern in all similar cases, Judge Bunn being noted as an able jurist both in Wisconsin and elsewhere.

Martin Closson, of Bangor, whose alleged depredations along the coast have been set forth, was arraigned before Trial Justice Smith, of Vinalhaven He pleaded guilty and was bound over being at once committed to the Knox county jail He admits that he took about $10 worth of articles but was not responsible for the extensive thieving reported along shore.

During a turkey shoot at Beech Hill in Rockport on Thanksgiving Day, Will Spear and Will Newbert got into an altercation, during which the latter was stabbed in the ribs The knife struck a glancing blow on the bone, otherwise there must have been a fatality to record The Rockport officers have made no arrest as yet, although the affray is a current topic on the streets

Mt Battie Lodge, I O O F of Camden has leased the third floor of the corporation building in that town for a term of ten years at an annual rental of $250. They will sublet to the Knights of Pythias in all probability The corporation building will now be entirely occupied and pays the nice rental of $1 700 Enough more is realized from the hall where all theatrical companies hold forth to bring the receipts up to $3,000 This is especially gratifying to the projectors of the building who believed that a modern $30,000 structure would pay It will be remembered that when the corporation received the $18,000 insurance money after the old building had been burned, there was an attempt to have it replaced with another which could be erected from the cash in hand and not incur a debt But now Camden freely rejoices that better and more progressive judgment prevailed

Rev John Pettingill for a number of years past, pastor of the Free Baptist church in Rockland, is to sever his connection with that church at the end of their year, which occurs in January and at the same time will withdraw himself from that denomination He intends to become a Baptist and will accept a call to a Baptist pulpit His exact destination is not yet settled

LETTER FROM HARPOOT

Situation Before Recent Massacre and Burning of Missionary Buildings

BOSTON, Dec 2 The following letter descriptive of the situation in Harpoot, Eastern Turkey immediately before the recent massacre there, and the burning of missionary buildings of the American Board, has been received in Boston from a reliable correspondent

"We have been going through times of great anxiety," says the writer "and we cannot tell whether we have reached the end yet or not Some ten days ago there was much unrest in the city because of apprehension that the Turks were about to attack the Christians The authorities showed much earnestness and ability in coping with that trouble and tranquility was restored But about a week ago the Kourds began to plunder the Christian villages on the other side of the Euphrates river to the north and east of us, and a few days since they crossed the river and plundered the villages on this side coming nearer and nearer to the city Every day refugees kept coming in bringing each his tale of woe The whole city became alarmed At last the military pasha sent word to the people living in gardens to move into the city Day before yesterday the shops in the city were closed and a state of terror prevailed The people were in hourly expectation of attack

"Although this state of things has been going on for days, the government had as yet made no effort to stop the Kourds Turks joined in the work of plunder It was known that the acting governor general had telegraphed to Constantinople, and that no word had come in reply The people said This is all the work of the government Add to this the fact that the Kourds have everywhere proclaimed that they have orders from the government to kill and plunder all the Christians and a heart-sickening conviction comes over us that the government has connived at it, if it has not directly encouraged the wholesale destruction of the Christians throughout the land

"It will take weeks to gather all the facts, but the work of destruction has been going on in all quarters The Turks in Diarbekir marched from the mosque down into the market place, singing and proclaiming that they had a firman to kill the Christians They set fire to the market and the churches and began their deadly work The light of the burning city could be seen from Arguna, twelve miles away,

"Arguna was in danger the lower town had been attacked and Christians killed there Malatia, Egin Arabkir, Palu and many other places are in danger, and villages have been sacked in all quarters In the Diarbekir region the Turks and Kourds are more fanatical than in this region, and they have taken life Here they plunder Still Christians have been killed in this region, how many we cannot yet know

"Finally the government took the initiative against the Kourds A telegram had come from Constantinople instructing them to preserve order with the forces at their command The soldiers attacked the Kourds and the next day drove them back across the river When the soldiers began to fire upon the Kourds the latter called out to them 'Why do you fire upon us, you summoned us' Only a determined front was required upon the part of the government and in a short time order was restored. There is an ugly element here in the city but the influential Turks seem to be holding it in check, and unless something unforeseen occurs the worst is over here

"Now a new problem begins to loom up The Christians have been stripped of all they possessed over a wide stretch of country think I may say from Sivas to Mardin, and still farther Winter is upon them there. How are they to live? The situation appeals Before we can get word to you the distress will be acute, and those whom the sword has spared are likely to die of hunger unless help reaches them. Here relief committees have been appointed and money is being collected to help the refugees, but this help will not be enough

"You need not be apprehensive for our personal safety although the situation is one of danger, but whatever happens, for the love of Christ, ask the Christians of America to care for this poor people! As the acute danger passes away, a great weight of sorrow and pain settles down on our hearts for this people given over into the hands of bloody and cruel men.

"A letter has just come from a Protestant in Erzingan. Writing eleven days after the disaster he reports 800 killed in the city, including the principal man among the Christians, while in the villages a large number have been killed. America must send money for the survivors"

My wife, sister, children, cousins, aunts and uncles, have all been strengthened by 'the mystery of their magic' I am truly grateful; but when I sit down to read one of 'Napoleon Bonaparte's Jokes' or 'An Irishman Crossing the Alps,' must always have to blunder into the old story of how 'Pierce's Pleasant Pellets' are purely vegetable, and anti-bilious, pleasant to the taste—cure sick headache, relieve torpid liver, and always give satisfaction?"

AN ARGUMENT.

THEY ALMOST CAME TO BLOWS—THE TROUBLE SOON DISCOVERED AND EVERYTHING NOW ALL RIGHT.

It was a quarrel amongst the organs of a man's body The man was sick, and his doctors didn't know what ailed him or how to cure him The Liver and Lungs the Spleen the Stomach and the Heart all "pitched into the Kidneys

"It's your fault," said the Liver You have certain work to do and you don't do it It's your place to filter all the poisons and impurities out of the body and you are not doing it

As a consequence said the Stomach we are all being clogged poisoned and irritated I am irritable and only half digest the food they are forcing into me Here's the Liver all clogged and torpid the Lungs are all choked up we don't get half enough oxygen the Head is aching the Nerves tingling the Back is aching and the poor heart is laboring like a sledge hammer

Even the Joints and Muscles cry out with Rheumatic pains

But we can't help it said the Kidneys We can't do impossibilities We are sick and weak ourselves and cannot do our work Of course these poisons collect in the blood and irritate and disease you The moment we stop work you feel it Your health always did and always will depend on our activity

And just then an ordinary every-day, common sense doctor who knew his business was called in and prescribed Dr Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills

The kidneys promptly responded and set cheerfully to work with renewed strength and vigor the Uric Acid the waste products of decay and of fever the ashes of digestion and all the poisons and impurities in the blood were cast out

Well this is something like it said the Liver I'll pitch in and do my work now said the Stomach

What a relief said the Liver and the Heart and the Joints and Muscles joined the chorus

The quarrel was over It was a happy family working harmoniously once more

This sounds like a fairy story but it is cold hard solid facts and common sense

And you can prove it to your satisfaction at any time for 50 cents

Mr. F. L. Jones, Bangor's well known baker and cracker manufacturer, is one of the best and largest gardeners in the city, and everything has to grow where he is. On his way South he will stop for a few days in Washington and collect more data, and during the winter he will condense and revise his work for the printers. The book will not be for sale but was written merely to perpetuate the fine record of the regiment.

Charles Buffum, Prof. Rogers and Doctors Mayo and Hamlin. The readings were by Misses Merrill, Libby, Crowell and Spencer. The singing was led by Mr. W. A. Saturday was the day upon which interest ceased on the $11[illegible],000 four per cent. bonds which Belfast is refunding. Up to that day but $20,000 had been refunded, but when the People's National Bank opened its doors Saturday morning, the bonds began to pour in and the deluge kept up all day until $50,000 worth of bonds had been presented. The Belfast Savings Bank brought in one block of $30,000, $18,000 of which was the bank's own holding. The managers of the People's National Bank anticipated just such a rush and were prepared for it and could have handled the whole amount been presented. Saturday, doubtless, will prove as the largest day's business the bank ever had. The bonds were shipped to the Portland brokers on the 3.55 P. M. train. Something over $70,000 have been refunded up to Monday and as interest has now stopped the balance will soon come in.

"PICTURESQUE MAINE."

Central Club Lecture by Edward C. Swett, Esq., of Portland.

The lecture in the Central Club course last evening was by Edward C. Swett, Esq., of Portland, upon "Picturesque Maine" and it heartily pleased one of the largest audiences of the course. Mr. Swett gave this same lecture last year before the Board of Trade but has added to it somewhat since then.

Mr. Swett paid a compliment to Bangor as a most desirable place to live in. In beginning his lecture, and then said that people had been so diverted from their own scenery and natural advantages by those in foreign lands that they did not realize the presence of the Cinderella in their midst.

He referred to the wonderful combination of sea coast, mountains, forests, lakes and rivers, which the State of Maine possesses and which is found nowhere else, and said that no State in these conditions so well fulfilled the meaning of Bryant's verse. After his eloquent introduction he proceeded to take his audience to some of the principal points of interest through the State, being aided by many fine stereopticon views.

The traveler of the evening first found the handsome and extensive Union Station at Boston presented before his gaze and from there went to the fine Union Station at Portland. After an excellent portrait of General Manager Payson Tucker, of the Maine Central, had been thrown on the screen and appropriately referred to, results about Casco bay were spoken of.

These included Portland harbor, the city of Portland, with the birth-place of Longfellow, his statue, the Western Promenade, an excellent portrait of Speaker Reed, which, together with the mention of his possible elevation to the Presidency, caused much applause, the cemetery in which lie the commanders of the Enterprise and Boxer, Cushing's Island, Ottawa House, Harpswell, with Rev. Elijah Kellogg's house, Orr's Island, Old Orchard, etc.

Next the magnificent hotel at Poland Springs was given deservedly extended mention and then the audience was taken to the prosperous town of Rumford Falls, which has sprung up within the past two years. The salmon pool at Bangor, which has the finest flavored fish of any in the United States, was described and shown on the canvas and the audience then went north.

Schoodic Lake, big Aroostook potato fields, an Aroostook school house, hunting camps, with specimens of the big game and fish secured in that territory, including the huge moose shot by Mr. W. L. Miller and Mr. A. C. Jerrard, of this city, Senator Frye's summer home, lumbering camps, were presented upon the screen and described, after which a jump was made to Camden the Defender manned by Deer Isle sailors and Bar Harbor with its beautiful cottages. A portrait of James G. Blaine was received with warm applause.

A trip to the Green Mountains and a journey to Isle au Haut completed the lecture which was notable for eloquent and realistic description, frequent and very appropriate use of poetical lines and a most interesting manner of presentation. Mr. Swett is a strong speaker and his lecture "Picturesque Maine" has been a success from the start a year ago.

The next entertainment will be a concert on the 16th.

IT'S A BEAUTY

The Handsome New Office Building of Morse & Co.

A stranger in passing the big plant of Morse & Co. upon seeing a certain new building there which is nearly completed, would naturally think that an art museum or library had been planted in the midst of the mill buildings, judging from the appearance of the handsome structure.

Such is not the case, however, for it is the new office building which the company has had under construction for some time and it is the finest building of any in New England among the companies engaged in the same business, while it is one of the best office buildings to be found anywhere.

The exterior is exceedingly artistic, being quiet and very tasteful in tone, yet being sufficiently strong in architecture to lift it far out of the common place. It is a most satisfying combination of elegance and simplicity which appeals very strongly to the artistic taste. All who have seen the new building are struck with admiration.

It stands upon the site of the old wooden office building and is two stories in height. The first story is of granite blocks with large windows, which give plenty of light. The second story contains the special ornamentation, which in contrast with the granite below causes such a feeling of pleasure.

The wall is plastered outside with imported cement, put on rough, and the gray tint is pleasing to the eye. Beautifully carved panels are upon the wall and the corners are supported by handsome fluted pilasters, surmounted by Ionic capitals, a heavy four-foot cornice, finely carved and running all around the building.

On one end, in the carved work of the large square panel is the firm name, "Morse & Company," and supporting it on either side is an oval panel one of which has the date of the founding of the firm of Morse & Co., "1850," while the other contains the figures "1895." On the front are two square panels, carved, bearing the words in raised letters as the other, "Interior finish," and "Mantels and Tiling," defining the business of the company. The building is 60 x 25 feet and the wall toward the building occupied by the wood-working rooms is built of brick.

A WHIG reporter was shown through the fine building yesterday afternoon by Mr. Walter L. Morse, and was much interested in what he saw. The vestibule will have a floor of tile, sheathing of quartered red oak and tile bases and leads to the main office room, 25x18. It will be panelled in red quartered oak and contains a big fire-place with red quartered oak mantel.

A large counter will extend across the room. At the left of the entrance is a large toilet room with tile floor and wall. A gate and door lead from the main office into the long distance telephone cabinet and from this a door gives entrance to the bookkeeper's office, 25x16. It will be finished in white quartered oak and will contain a counter, desks, etc., together with another large fire place and fine mantel.

The private office of the company comes next and is 25x14 feet. It will be finished throughout in mahogany, will have an oak floor, a beautiful mantel, and large fire place and will be handsomely furnished. The light will enter through the several large windows, which will contain silver ripple glass, centered in front with opalescent figures of fleur de lis.

A coat room is also one of the conveniences of the first floor.

The staircase which leads to the second story will be panelled part way. This part of the building is the display hall for mantels and tiles and one could almost believe himself in an art gallery or studio. The light comes entirely from above, through a monitor roof, with the exception of an oval window at one end, so that the displays can be viewed to the best advantage.

About the sides of the hall, which is 59x22 feet, are numerous artificial fireplaces, which will set off the beautiful tiling and mantels carried by the company. At the end of the room is a big fire-place, which looks very cheerful. In one corner is a large window seat for ladies. There will be numerous tables for the display of tiles, of which the company has one of the finest stocks to be found anywhere.

The display hall will be tastefully decorated in keeping with the superb display of tiling and mantels to be found there. Opening from this room are two small rooms, one a lavatory for ladies and the other for office supplies. A door leads directly to the elevation in the rear of the building, making it easy to transport the mantels from the manufacturing department to the display room, as well as the tiling from the wagon.

A high curved granite retaining wall, surmounted by a railing, flanks the office building and adds to the general effect of the structure.

Morse & Co. have, in addition to numerous other departments, the best equipped wood working establishment this side of New York and one of the most extensive and choice stocks of tiling to be found in any section of the land.

Their erection of this elegant, commodious and convenient office and display building is in keeping with their characteristic enterprise and gives them a splendid opportunity to show to their many visitors from other States, as well as Maine, the beautiful work which they can furnish. It will be the Mecca of all who delight in fine mantels and choice tiling and who desire to obtain such for their houses.

General Passenger Agent [illegible] H. Houghton of the Bangor & Aroostook railroad has kept a record of all the deer, moose and caribou shipped from the various stations along the line thus far this year and the public will remember that the record for October was greatly in excess of the same month last year.

Mr. Houghton has just received the figures for the month of November, which also show a large increase over the corresponding month last year. The record for November is as follows:

There is one more month of open time on big game and considerable hunting will be done but not as much as in the previous month, as is usual. October was the great month for hunting, as it always is, the conditions then being more favorable than at any other time. The grand total for the year for deer, moose and caribou will be much larger than for 1894.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Gilbert Opera Company.

The Gilbert Opera Company began a week's engagement, with a nightly change of bill, at the Opera House last night, and it was a successful opening. The opera was the old time favorite "Iolanthe," whose sweet and lively music and its novel scenes have kept it popular for years, and it was presented in a very capable manner before a good sized audience.

The most of the principals have good voices and the chorus singing is strong and harmonious, while both are assisted by the company's orchestra which accompanies with pleasing effect. The opera was well costumed and the special scenery aided in giving realism to the scenes. All in all the company made a good impression which promises well for the remainder of the week.

Miss Zihn as "Iolanthe" sang pleasingly and acted gracefully, and the "Phyllis" of Miss Balch was an enjoyable feature of the performance. The latter received a handsome bouquet of flowers. Miss Power as the "Queen of the Fairies," Mr. Gilbert as "The Lord Chancellor," Mr. Couch as the "Earl of Mountararat," Mr. Nelson as "Earl Tolloller," Mr. Edmunds as "Private Willis," and Mr. Dodd as "Strephon" were all good. Mr. Dodd will be remembered by Bangor people as a valued participant in the opera of "Priscilla," given here, mostly by amateurs, a few years ago.

Owing to the difficulty of making the proper electric light connections yesterday, the living pictures could not be presented last night, but it is expected that they will be to-night. The management generously presented all who attended last night with a ticket for to-night's performance owing to the disappointment over the living pictures.

"Fatinitza" will be the opera this evening and the principal parts will taken as follows:

"Vladimir Samoiloff" ...... Miss Florence Gilbert
"Princess Lydia Imanovna" ...... Miss Ethel Balch
"Count Timofey Kantchukoff" ...... Frank Edwards
"Julian Hardy" ...... Harry Nelson
"Izzet Pasha" ...... Elbert Couch
"Mustapha" ...... Frank Ranney
"Steipann" ...... Thomas Callahan

Notes.

Frank Daniels of happy memory in this city has many admirers who will be interested to know that "The Wizard of the Nile" at the Casino in New York is a success. Harry Smith has written better books, Victor Herbert better music, but the operetta is a success and is as light and bright as an omelette soufflé. Frank Daniels is very funny, and in the pyramid scene his work is genuine comedy; not buffoonery. Curiously enough the nub of the plot is not unlike Sydney Rosenfeld's and Rudolph Aronson's Egyptian opera which failed to score at the Casino several seasons ago. There was the same old drought in Egypt and rain was sadly needed. Mr. Herbert's music is of a more popular character than Prince Ananias, but it is not so fine. There are lots of lively marches and dance rhythms and bits of orchestral color that are only Herbert's.

Charles Frohman occasionally finds time to indulge in humor. At a rehearsal in one of his theatres he heard the stage manager say to the leader of the band:

"Now, Herr Schnitzel, begin playing as soon as the curtain drops, but not too loud, and not too forte."

"Not even forte, not too thirty," said Mr. Frohman, thereby indicating a delicate dynamic difference. And, of course, the band played fortissimo. It generally does in most of our playhouses.

Total	$[illegible]

The past winter having been so mild, it was not found necessary to collect so large amounts as usual; it is expected that the present balance in the treasury will be sufficient to meet all calls on the society for aid, until the collectors make their annual rounds in January. The collector on the East Side should have credit for collecting about twenty dollars more than appears in the above report as there was donated to the society by one of the mill owners about ten cords of mill wood which does not show on either side of the report. All of the Endowment Fund is in the hands of the City Treasurer being held by him as a trust fund on which the city pays interest at the rates of four and six per cent.

Having examined the foregoing account of the treasurer of said society for the fiscal year ending December 2, 1895, I certify that the same is properly vouched for and correctly stated.
